ON-DEMAND CLE COURSE CATALOG

A Taste of Ethics: Ethical Lessons from America's Food Fights	This program uses surprising and memorable food-related cases to illuminate the ethical duties lawyers confront in everyday practice. Whether the dispute involves macaroni and cheese, barbecue feuds, misleading food labels, or trademark battles among distilleries, each story serves as a springboard for examining key rules of professional responsibility. By connecting vivid, real-world, food-related conflicts to the Model Rules, the session offers a practical, engaging, and accessible way to understand how competence, confidentiality, loyalty, honesty, fairness, and integrity guide modern legal practice.	1.0 Ethics Credit
Civics and Civility: How the Judiciary Can Defend Democracy in Challenging Times	This program identifies the ways that judges can defend the judiciary and promote civility while staying within the framework of existing ethical and professional conduct rules.	1.0 Ethics Credit
Hungry for Justice: Perspectives on Food, Civil Rights Law, and Race	Food has played an important role in civil rights case law. Many of the key court decisions determined the circumstances under which the federal government can compel hospitality businesses to integrate dining spaces and sell food to everyone. This program uses food-related businesses as case studies in how statutory interpretation, regulatory enforcement, and legal reasoning shape everyday life.	1.0 DEI Credit
Juneteenth: The Latest Word in Freedom: DEI Perspectives Through the Intersection of Food, Race, and Law	This program examines the legal evolution of the Juneteenth federal holiday and its food traditions. It creates greater understanding of diversity, equity, and inclusion through multiple legal practice areas, including constitutional law, federal legislation and regulation, military law, state law, legislative drafting, and civil rights legislation.	1.0 DEI Credit
Mac 'n' Cheese, Mass Torts, and Miscellaneous Law: Adventures at the Crossroads of Law and Macaroni and Cheese	Macaroni and cheese is an American food beloved across age groups, cultures, and dietary preferences. This program uses the iconic dish as a lens for understanding a variety of legal practice areas.	1.0 General Credit
Smoked, Subpoenaed, and Served: Adventures at the Crossroads of Law and Barbecue	This program uses barbecue as a case study in how statutory interpretation, regulatory enforcement, and legal reasoning shape everyday life. Through humorous and insightful stories from America's barbecue history, participants will explore how legal frameworks develop, how agencies regulate culture, and how courts resolve disputes arising from tradition, commerce, and community identity.	1.0 General Credit
